Nanoparticle powders of a perylene bisimide derivative (PBI-PM) were obtained from the formation of emulsion droplets in a dichloroethane (DCE) solution. The fluorescence quantum yield was determined to be  $(0.8 \pm 0.1)\%$  at the wavelength of 350 nm, and the fluorescence lifetime was measured to be 2.1 ns, both of which were very similar to those observed for a micelle solution of PBI-PM. This is to our knowledge the first report on the solid-state fluorescence from perylene bisimide derivative nanocapsules. Isoelectric focusing--a valuable probe for molecular biology. Isoelectric focusing (IEF) is a fast, simple, inexpensive, and robust technique for protein separation. In addition, the pI value is a well-defined parameter of charge and thus permits unequivocal identification of proteins. Eukaryotic proteins are not a homogeneous group. They differ in the number of cysteine and histidine residues, the amino acid sequence, and their post-translational modifications, e.g. phosphorylation. Thus, one usually has to employ IEF for the analysis of proteins. IEF is a potentially important tool in identifying and characterizing proteins involved in cellular processes. It is indispensable as a basic technique for comparative protein mapping. IEF can be combined with Western blot techniques (western blotting) and with DNA sequencing. IEF is the basis of many applications in molecular biology, which focus on the partial proteolysis and the recovery of peptides from a mixture of proteins. Also, IEF can provide a platform to study the impact of transfection or co-expression of proteins on the solubility, stability, and activity of a protein. Q: Android make the button to have a default value How to make the button in the following code have a default value for the onclick listener method? Or somehow force the activity to wait until the button is pressed before continuing to execute the method? My code is as follows: public class MainActivity extends Activity { @Override protected void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState
