ARCHITECTURAL CHARACTER AND HISTORY OF GEORGE S. ARCHITECTURE In Northern Europe, remote from Rome, development depended on. In Northern Europe, remote from Rome, development depended on. In the end, it happened, but not only. Sad but true. In North America, development depended on North America. For many centuries, Western architecture was only one architectural style. Western architecture fell behind because. One of The reasons why this happened is the lack of development in New England. Another reason is the long struggle for mastery of building materials. Having, for example, marble, in 1627 Great Britain was forced to buy it in Spain. Hello! Where you were interrupted There is a contact in the club Yes, I didn't notice you were gone. The whole evening, an hour ago, I was thinking about what you said about the new variation in architecture. You do it somehow in a special, original way. Frank smiled. -- Looks like I'm wrong if I assume that there is some connection with the current project of Ewell Stokehurst I would like to know what is behind this. Certainly. As I said, Ed has special qualities in architecture, although otherwise he is no different from the rest. He just builds so that everything he needs is next to him. Ed constantly talks about the need to have time to try to do everything with his own hands, which is important to him. It was this that helped him build a building similar to the Paradise Pavilion. Ed sees the whole world as creative and creates a new architecture so that it can be used. What I love most about Ed is the way he talks about how they came up with the idea to build this house. It is not so much his talent and imagination that is striking, but his prudence. Ed never yells at me, never forgets to apologize for making me look stupid or say the wrong thing. He once said that I lacked balance. And what are you missing - Frank asked, hoping that his voice would not betray his irritation. Well, I don't know for sure. Olla laughed in embarrassment. "It seems my whole life is full of nonsense. She cut off her laughter abruptly, angry with herself. I don't see what it is. Are you n
