Influence of foot position on plantar pressure distribution during running. The purpose of this study was to examine the effects of three static foot positions on plantar pressure distribution on the foot during running. Sixteen subjects performed a 6-minute maximal running bout. Three foot positions were tested, standing (ST), medial (MED) and maximal dorsiflexion (MAX), in random order using a crossover design. Plantar pressure distribution was measured using a Pedar pressure-instrument with a sampling rate of 80 Hz. My mind was filled with thoughts of God, and occasionally I would stumble upon a thought of God. If you know me well enough, you probably know that I struggle with the ontological argument. I don't not believe in God, because I can't see Him. I think about it, I love it, and I try to find ways to grapple with it. My inability to see God, or even to think about God, has caused more than its share of trouble in my life. Growing up I was very aware that God didn't pay much attention to me, and so I spent a lot of time trying to get his attention. I would usually take to the streets to try and get his attention, because I wasn't sure if he even really existed. My mother would say that I was his person, and so I had to do what was necessary to make my mother happy. I'm sure that made me less than desirable to God. The Bible said that God's hand would be heavy upon my head, but it wasn't until I began to see that in my life that I began to believe it. One of my favorite stories in the Bible, comes after an account of the Jews being in the desert. They were receiving water from pools of water that were dry. God's presence was with them, and yet they had no impression of His existence. "How do you know there is a God, Moses?" God asked Moses. "Because I speak with him day and night, my Lord," Moses
