This is my most popular Keyboard Tutorial ever made! I wanted to make a video that showcases every part of my typing experience that I've gone through so that others can benefit as well, and that's what you're getting. I am so happy to say that I was able to type at a speed of 105 W.P.M in 3rd Grade for my Typing test in this video, I was so proud to beat my previous record of 75 W.P.M. I remember this day, it was the first time I realized I was a faster Typist than most people I knew. Now that I'm an adult, it's even faster, because I gained more skill and knowledge to continue to improve my skills. You will learn from this OnScreen Keyboard Tutorial all the equipment, tools, and tips that I use to help improve my speed at typing. I use a ThinkPad keyboard, the EK-CG100, and use it in conjunction with the OnScreen Keyboard to help me find the keys faster, and to beat my typing speed that I was once taught. I created the "OnScreen Tutorial" because I wanted to help others to have a better experience than I was able to have, and allowed to be a part of this amazing community. Now you too can learn from a Guru like myself, and get faster at typing and typing faster than everyone around you. Features included in this OnScreen Keyboard Tutorial: Learn everything from the Beginner Level all the way to the Professional Typing Level. Learn what "Landgripping" is and how to do it correctly. Learn how to type in the incorrect way so that I show you why it's important to learn the Right Way. Learn Basic and Advanced Typing Commands and how they work. Learn the Advanced typing commands that are only used by Professionals. Learn to follow a Word from the beginning to the End, so you can type faster than any other. Learn Keyboard Commands for Media Player, Firefox, MS Word, Chrome, and many other programs. Learn Keyboard Commands for functions of the keyboard, they include, stopping, stopping, volume, and many more. Cats in Time is a 2007 comedy horror spoof film directed by Sion Sono and serving as his feature film debut. It was co-written by Sono and Kikuko Funaki along with James DeMonaco, based on a story by Sono. The film follows two cats named Michiyo (Sono) and Kiki (Funaki) as they view the cataclysmic events of 2001 in the wake of the Y2K bug. The film stars Sono as himself along with the voices of Hiroki Aiba, Yūki Katō,, Junji Fujio and. Cats in Time premiered at the 2007 Toronto International Film Festival in the Queer Artists Spotlight category. The Japanese release of the film was debuting on January 7, 2008. The North American release of the film was debuting on Blu-ray Disc at select stores on October 22, 2008. The Japanese version of the film made it to number 11 in the weekly box office charts. Plot The film opens with a scene at the end of time before the Holocene era, prior to the advent of man, where the Earth is peaceful and reptiles dominate. Its name is called Earth: at the time of the 9th Dragon, and its reign ends. On it is Michiyo, a young cat, who gazes at the planet with a wonder and awe, as the Holocene era begins. In the present day, an industrialist of a megachurch in Japan is on a talk show where he promotes salvation and an afterlifer to many viewers (such as an unnamed Japanese beauty pageant contestant and a kitten), deceiving them that he can bring their dead loved one back to life, making it more believable. Kiki, a female feline from a wealthy family, calls in to his television talk show, as Michiyo, another cat, has discovered that Kiki and her feline brethren are all dead. He says that there are eight billion humans on Earth, all from the 9th generation, and Kiki (who was born over 1,000 years earlier) had no idea what was going on in 2001. Only a new generation, created by Kiki's family, would know about it. In fact, Kiki says that she will be able to bring Michiyo back since he only entered the world six hours ago. The industrialist plans to purchase these materials and undergoes a cult transformation of something called the Holy See of the Holy
