Headset Required Nothing compared to flying through the clear skies of the Swiss Alps in your very own plane. Something along the lines of the unbelievable real racing game - “Cobra Racing,” only on virtual reality. Battle through challenging race tracks while using the “trifecta” of the Falcon´s engine parts to lay down maximum amounts of speed, rocketing through dangerous turns. Take off in different weather conditions and race with up to 8 people in the co-op mode! Key Features • Stunning graphics in virtual reality • Race on challenging tracks in several game modes • Realistic vehicle models • Multiple game modes with up to 8 players online • Free roaming with checkpoints, power ups and trifecta items • 3 game pads included Gameplay Minus VR: Headset Not Required Minus the wings and the power, you will still feel like you are in a top class racing simulator. Just with a different kind of vehicle. With “minus VR” you drive on realistic race tracks, collect your speed on dangerous curves and test your cornering abilities. But the only thing missing is the wind in your face. This “minus VR” has no wind! The virtual track is completely empty, without any trackside objects. The only thing you get is a full view of the course. It is up to you how you enjoy driving through the deserted track. Key Features • Realistic race tracks with a max speed of up to 80mph • Run and collect points in multiple game modes • Highly detailed 3D graphics • Practice race and single races with up to 2 players • Advanced AI racing opponents, opponents can react on your moves Gameplay TRANCE VR: Headset Required You like racing? You need speed? You want to feel like a real pro driver? And you want to feel the power of a real racing game on your head? Then “Trance VR” is just what you are looking for. Choose between the first-person cockpit view or the third-person view of the road, pick your favorite car model, feel the thunder of the engine and feel the rush of adrenaline. But don’t worry! The “Trance VR” is not limited to the race. You can test your driving skills on a real cross-country race route, play against the AI with various settings and use the in-game camera

.Id) UPDATE Product SET IsWhitelist = @Sqroma.IsWhitelist WHERE Id = @NewProductID; NewProductID is a known ID for a new product. IsWhitelist is a field for the Whitelist list and has a value of 1 for is whitelisted, or 0 for is not. The problem that I am having is when the process goes to run through the second query, the ProductID is being updated, however the IsWhitelist value is not being updated for the new Product. I am unsure of what went wrong in the update query. I initially thought it was the IsWhitelist being written twice, however after researching this problem, I am confident it is because the product is being inserted into the whitelist, the stored procedure has executed but the IsWhitelist value is not updated for the new whitelist entry for the Product. I am using SQL Server 2008. Any help would be greatly appreciated. A: thanks for the comments. Thanks a lot mates for suggesting this to me. Turns out I had a small bug in my insert query which I overlooked. I was missing the output clause to get the Id of the new entry. Thank you for your time. Q: Generic method to multi-column projection with Reflection I'm trying to create a generic method to do the following queries on a @QueryClass property, which are used inside an InventoryTool, but these need to be a bit more complex. The main columns are Text, Int16 and Integer. I need the Text firstly in an array to fill a text area with more complex, dynamic data, and then I have to filter the filter with columns like Int16 and Integer. I tried to get an instance of T in the result set and then get some data, but was unable to get that to work. Here is my attempt at a pseudo code: private static List getMemberValueAndFilter(Expression expr, Expression filter) { var typeInfo = expr.Body.Type; var typeInfoOfFilter = filter.Body.Type; var genericTypeWithTypeparam = typeof(List).MakeGenericType(typeInfoOfFilter

Semiconductor packaging seeks to protect fragile semiconductor devices against humidity and other effects and against mechanical stresses and shocks. Semiconductor components are usually extremely sensitive to oxygen and water. Therefore, the high-quality encapsulation of semiconductor chips or devices by a packaging material is a key to favorable performance of the connected component. An increasingly popular form of semiconductor packaging is Multi Chip Module (MCM) technology, in particular wafer scale packaging (WSP), which renders it possible to combine a multiplicity of semiconductor circuits onto a single semiconductor component (multichip module). Semiconductor components (and in particular semiconductor modules) may be exposed over a period to the ambient, in particular to humidity. This must be prevented in the best possible way in order to ensure the proper function of the components concerned. One known form of protection is to enclose the entire chip or semiconductor module in a laminate carrier. This method of protection is complex and is not suitable for modules with very small dimensions such as, for example, semiconductor modules which are formed by etching a silicon wafer. A further known approach for protection is to apply a polymer layer to the component to encapsulate the component. The polymer layer can ensure protection from humidity, atmospheric oxygen, mechanical loads and chemicals. However, in many instances or applications, the semiconductor component has to be exposed to humidity in the presence of the components and/or the components have to be directly exposed to humidity. A further possibility for protection of components is a technique based on sealing by the principle of Sputter Deposition technology (S. Zaremba, A. Steinlechner, “Control of the thickness of surface layers: a new method for protecting semiconductor components,” in Publication on the Internet, Carl Munters GmbH, Website: 2009, 47-53). In this technique, the components are deposited with a lacquer.
