Gameplay

You are Thomas, a seemingly simple pawn in the game of dreams. But when you are called on to decide between the true King and the Queen in a chess-like game of dreams, you will learn the consequences of a false choice.

The object of the game is to choose between playing the Queen or the King in a chess-like game of dreams. Both sides of the board should be filled before beginning, as players will alternate between each side each turn to collect a certain number of objects. The game continues until one side is destroyed.

The King will bring you a crown when you are faithful. The Queen will play a song when the King chooses a chess position, changing the theme to fit that part of the game. The Queen can also give you a -10 power damage to help you win but will drain your power if you are not careful.

PRAGUE, PRAGUE

Yes, the King is just as important as the Queen. This time you don't get to play. Instead you perform your duty to protect the King, draining your power carefully. You hear the stories in your dreams—and help them. If you help five stories, they are all cured and will leave you alone. However, if you help just one story, the King will probably go

What's new:

The Challenge: My character is named Arthur. The settlement, Bellwether. The location: A new world with magic. The fey had colonized an area of forest through force of magic and it is now isolated. The creatures can only enter it through a waterfall that has a perpetual connection to their homeland, the Place of Bitter Cold. The idea: My character has heard about this place, but he is not sure if he is going to go there. He has a family in another settlement as well as important things to do here that are part of his role as leader of the settlement. The Place of Bitter Cold is a great place of power in the center of Feyland and known for their wealth and decadence. The area has been discovered by humans who control it in secret. A powerful human King resides there who's name is Philipp. A move by the end of the year, and the challenge has already started. Fountains are still flowing and magic can be found everywhere but new quests must be accomplished to receive it. The King has offered on of an exclusive quests to those who reach the end of this year, but the cost is higher than any other quest. I started with my character, Arthur, at the entrance of the green, enchanted forest. What I first noticed was its odd appearance. There were no stones laid out like with most others. Mud covered most of its surface. This green out-of-place environment caught Arthur's attention. He suddenly knew it was the place, the Place of Bitter Cold. As he walked through the Green, he stopped hearing leaves rustle, and people talking. Going deeper into it, he noticed more than just the sights before him, he heard different sounds in a creepy but comfortable manner. Even the wind's howl felt like it had a certain purpose. Arthur went deeper into the green which led him to the waterfall before him. It was a sight to behold. In a short amount of time there were more waterfalls. The forest's edges cut through it like tributaries from the ocean's main creek. Several fountains appeared, large, tall, and deep. There was also a connecting stream where small swarms of other fountains appeared in all directions. Arthur went deeper into the green as he walked towards the waterfall, which was nothing but a constant wall of white mist. Other fountains were present as well, but there was no indication that the King resided anywhere near
