"Europa Universalis IV is a grand strategy game that puts you at the helm of a medieval nation-state in a world of medieval states. Play a how-i-ever series of history-driven sandbox adventures as you try to become the most powerful leader in the land and the wealthiest nation-state ever known." Key Features: - Play as an overlord in the most immersive grand strategy game yet - Experience real-time, 3D battles in one of the most visually stunning Medieval worlds ever created - Completely sandbox your own empire, conquer as you see fit - even change history by overthrowing other leaders - Decide how you want to spread your religion: can you convert everyone, or wage a bloody crusade? As TMO's Laurence MacInnes said in his review of Europa Universalis IV, Paradox has succeeded in making the grand strategy series into a compelling gaming experience. We, the Audio Team, were lucky enough to attend the Paradox Alumni Summit in Düsseldorf and had the opportunity to record a new set of interviews with the development team. On this episode we talk about a lot of different subjects, from Paradox's latest news (like their new transmedia creative project) to the new content we brought with us from our previous Europa Universalis IV recording. You may also want to check out the last edition of our Europa Universalis IV review: Don't forget to like and subscribe, and if you enjoyed this content, you may want to check out our strategy game channels: We have reached episode 50 of our musical adventures in the new world of Europa Universalis IV, and we've had a little bit of a change of direction with our reviews. In our original conception we took a one-for-one approach to covering each of the EU4 expansions so we could focus our energy where it was needed. Since the announcement of the license change, Paradox has provided the one piece they did not ship with EU4, Shattered Crown. With Shattered Crown now available, we had to change the

The new Music Pack, Songs of War Music Pack: Europa Universalis IV adds new tracks to the European Theatre of War. These new tracks contain 15 minutes of original music, from which around 8 minutes are composed as a composition/arrangement of the original tracks from Europa Universalis IV. Each additional track of about 7-8 minutes has been recorded as a new composition. All music was composed by Aurelio Voltaire, who also composed the soundtrack for Europa Universalis IV. This album contains all original music of Europa Universalis IV. The music has no lyrics, and is fully and solely composed with instruments. Q: How to convert AES CBC, CTR or GCM to a symmetric hash? I have some data encrypted with one of the following algorithms: Cipher block chaining (CBC) mode Cipher-text-recycling (CTR) mode Galois/counter mode (GCM) What would be a better way to turn that encrypted data into a hash which can be used in a simple hash function? A: CBC cipher's decryption isn't deterministic. However, if your goal is to roll some crypto to make hashable data, then you don't need to go to deterministic (more advanced) solution, just use any standard hash for example SHA256. GCM is deterministic, so you should avoid using it, since more advanced solutions will be needed. CTR is deterministic, thus you can apply a hash to it, but you have to apply a special padding strategy - with CTR padding there is no way to get a fixed output. For this reason it is often used to "prove" that something of given size is indeed encrypted with CTR. Again, you can apply any standard hash to this. So, I would conclude that CBC mode is easier, and you can use any standard hash ( d41b202975

Mansions of Kings is the EU4 expansion I've been waiting for for a long time. This is because, after my interview with the game's lead designer, I became a little worried about whether or not there was actually going to be a release for us to play. Now we can see that the developers' promise that it would be released was backed up by our first gameplay impressions. The expansion introduces the most compelling new features, all of which I am fully sold on. The upgrade path from EU3 to EU4 is certainly complex. The earlier is a little easier to master but the later will be harder to see. The game has received a lot of scrutiny over its procedurally generated regions, now that we have gotten a new look at them. We can see that the variation between the regions is now very small and what a player will experience will be rather much the same. For this review I will be talking about the 'new' regions that have been introduced in the game since the launch of EU3, with the end game regions and the review for all the previous EU4 content being subject to a future update. Let's start with the new regions. New Regions In the new regions, I have to admit, I am not fully sold on the concept. It makes sense that as you progress, the regions should become harder to conquer, but it feels slightly as if there has been a target value for how hard the conquest is set to be. The regions are similar in many ways and seem to come up with ever increasing difficulty. Maybe a bit of a deja vu would be in order? It might be better, the beginning of the campaign might even have to be totally restarted. Like all of the new content, you will be asked to become an absolute monarch and will need to forge alliances. The goal of the campaign is to conquer all of the regions in the world. You can start in any one of the regions. In this instance, I am going to focus on the Swedish region. When you start out the campaign in Sweden, you have two major city states to start off with. These are Haga and Visby. If you go to the diplomacy screen you can see what the others think of you. Haga is on good terms, Visby seems a little skeptical. When you take control of the region, you can issue an edict. These give the regent various

What's new in Europa Universalis IV: Songs Of War Music Pack:

for PC A collection of 80's-inspired tunes for your Europa Universalis IV soundtrack. The Europa Universalis IV Age of Discoveries: Songs of War & Peace soundtrack is a collection of songs composed in collaboration with the band you may know from The Portal and The Castle, Maedhros' Arts. A different key and harmony-wise than the game's track music, but everything else is stock. I'm editing video for Europa Universalis IV tomorrow, so I wanted to test these while I had my hands on a Western European map. We have official mod support, so it's definitely a good place to play. If you've played the duos or single tracks mentioned in the title, this stuff should show up near you. 1.) The Eyes of a Lion 2.) Smithy 3.) Novice Fury 4.) Dominion 5.) The Tar Pit 6.) Defensive Measures 7.) Morning Star 8.) Desertland 9.) The Waiting Game 10.) Du Fu 11.) Largus 12.) Night of the Pines 13.) Thunder Bay 14.) Sweet Love Morn 15.) Minge 16.) Panda 17.) Kora 18.)
