Just like the FIFA series before it, FIFA 22 can be expected to contain over 1000 additions and subtractions, tweaks and changes. The 2014 edition of FIFA was no exception. Broadcast Team Enhancements The broadcast department have been overhauled for the new season, bringing great improvements to the player models, crowd sounds, commentator commentary and presentations. The male and female voices and karaoke channels have been re-voiced and re-recorded, as have the crowds and new commentary for a more realistic experience. The presentation has a great new way of bringing you into the game, using graphics instead of scrolling explanations, from player stats to tactics to injuries. Less text helps relieve the boredom from the game after a while, and quicker load times help speed up the game's load times. The graphics have been improved, with player models having more details, and player movements being more fluid. The new broadcast team consists of the following: Commentary 1 – Gary Lineker, Gemma Adams, Gary Lewin and Kevin Kilbane 2 – Lee Dixon, Josh Doyle, Jon Champion and Jim Beglin 3 – Lee Sharpe, Greg Eni and Steve Bower Tattoo Booth Booth 3 – Steve Bower, Ross Murray, Ricky Evans and Paul Merson Match Day TV 10 – Geoff Shreeves, Lee Bowyer, Jeff Stelling and Stuart Attwell Match Day TV 11 – Andy Hinchcliffe, Des and TJ Midgely, Richard Keys Match Day TV 12 – Barney Ronay, Barry Glendenning, Stuart Mathieson and Andy Townsend Match Day TV 13 – Ian Dennis, Clive Tyldesley, Chris Kamara and John Motson Match Day TV 14 – Jake Humphrey, Dan Roan, Lee Dixon and Gary Lewin Match Day TV 15 – Ian Dennis, Gary Lewin, Chris Kamara and John Motson Match Day TV 16 – Andy Hinchcliffe, Barry Glendenning, Stuart Mathieson and Dale Epton Match Day TV 17 – Des, Jonathan Pearce, Lee Sharpe and Ricky Evans Match Day TV 18 – Max Rushden, TONY BLAIR, Gary Lewin and Gemma Adams Match Day TV 19 – Steve Bower, Paul Merson, Greg Eni, Lee Dixon Match Day TV 20 – Steve Bower, John Motson, Ian Dennis and Gary Lewin

FIFA (originally known as Electronic Sports World Cup) is an annual franchise of sports video games developed by EA Canada (formerly Visual Concepts), originally published by Electronic Arts and more recently published by EA Sports. It was first released for the Nintendo Entertainment System in December 1991, then for the Super Nintendo Entertainment System and Mega Drive in 1993, then for the PlayStation in September 1994 and Sega Saturn in May 1995, and the Game Boy Color in November 1995. The 2006 release of the fifa 07 game had a different developer and publisher; Eidos Interactive (which also published the game) replaced EA. This game was not fully compatible with fifa 07 and required a modified edition of the game to work properly. EA sports fifa 18 released in September. FIFA is a game that simulates the rules and format of association football. Goalkeepers can now dive at opportune times in the penalty area, and goal-line technology has been greatly improved. Other significant additions include quicker dribbling moves, improved off-the-ball movement, new lay-offs, new dribble moves and finishing, more accurate long-range shooting and more realistic handling. It also supports the Master League mode, which is a World Cup/Seasons mode. In the Master League, the player takes the manager role and is given control of a team in a championship with other managers. The FIFA franchise features different clubs and leagues from various countries. The FIFA series is made by EA Sports, a subsidiary of Electronic Arts, which is a video game publisher and, as of December 2010, one of the world's largest. The development of FIFA games is based in Leamington Spa, England.
