Players are now able to run with greater speed and mobility, and then accelerate back to top speed quicker than ever before. High speed duels will also be played out more naturally, as players can be tackled from any direction, and controlled more robustly and quickly, thanks to the game's new tackle functionality and improved player awareness. An all-new suspension model with variable stiffness creates the right feel and right feel for each surface. FIFA 22 also features a number of other improvements to goalkeepers, shooting and passing, dribbling, acceleration and more. For more information, visit www.fifa.com/football/news/news/latest-news/index.html. The game is featured as the Video Game of the Year winner at the 2016 National Academy of Video Game Trade Reviewers Awards. More information about FIFA will be released at a later date. An open beta will take place starting on September 28, 2016. Full game release for the Xbox One, PS4 and PC is planned for Q4 of 2016.

Wendy Williams Her name is on that building. It's a big, beige, monolithic thing, but she's Wendy Williams and there's nobody else like her. That's definitely true. Even with her hair. Now she's back in the news with this year's Miss USA pageant. She says no one is qualified to run the event, and she's still not sold on pageant culture. Her new show on Bravo starts tomorrow, so I guess it'll all be worth it. Also, if you missed the Olympic closing ceremonies, you can watch the highlights online.

The SNP is "hellbent" on a Scottish alliance with Jeremy Corbyn's Labour Party, Chancellor George Osborne says. The Labour leader's top team is "a group of people that may not be particularly experienced in constitutional matters", he claimed. When talking about the Tories' "negotiations" with Labour, Mr Osborne told the BBC's Andrew Marr Show: "For years they have been hellbent on a Scottish alliance with the SNP." Mr Osborne later added: "It is a very interesting question about the shape of British politics, but one
