Lance Burton, a consultant for The Hewlett-Packard Company, Inc., is assigned the task of helping Alex Murphy, a troubled soldier from the United States Army, to clear his name. Terrence Moriarty, the titular "Vato", is Murphy's childhood friend who trained to become a US Navy Seal. Murphy has a score to settle with mob boss Adrian Shephard. Shephard's wife, Mary, was the love of Murphy's life. Mary also happens to be the fiancée of Victor Hand, the chief executive officer (CEO) of Horizon Oil, which was one of the primary weapons contractors for the US government. The three are forced to work together to outmaneuver the mob and gain revenge. Rory Reynolds and her best friend, Charlotte, are on a quest to find her late best friend's killer, a dragon named Heather. One night, Rory and Charlotte witness the death of a young woman. The police suspect it is an accidental drowning, but the circumstances of her death keep bothering Rory and Charlotte. They keep seeing a mysterious woman in white in their dreams. However, they could be the killer's next target. Set in the near-future, the galaxy may be split between two military factions, the remnants of the once-mighty Union and the Army of the Republic. While the survivors of the First Aurora War rebuild, two vessels, the Proteus and the USS Cortana, are sent into battle again against the forces of the Reapers, a race of ships that have been attacking the galactic core. In a dystopian, post-apocalyptic future, the world is on the edge of collapse and will soon be destroyed. The only thing left is the great city Helios, which appears to be suspended in the sky. The leader of this city is Primus, a humanoid robot with incredible powers; his greatness also makes him flawed. The Protagonist, a young Helios native, is thrown into the middle of this chaotic world where he must find and defeat Primus before Helios is destroyed. The year is 1008. The few survivors of the Spanish conquest of Mesoamerica, or "New Spain", are still engaged in a centuries-long struggle for
